

Privacy Policy

Your privacy is extremely important to us. We respect your privacy and thus it is Bizdateup's policy to highly regard any personal information that we may collect from you through our website or any other platform.

We only ask for personal information when we truly need it, to provide you with our services. All personal information collected from you is done by all fair means and in a lawful manner. Your personal information can be given off only with your knowledge and consent.

By entering one's details on our website, one has given his/her irrevocable and unalterable acceptance or consent to all the clauses of the existing terms and conditions, which the owner of the website has all rights to revise from time to time.

We do not share any personal information collected publicly or with any third parties except for when it is required to do so by the law. No personal information is discharged.

We reserve our right to get in contact with one who has entered his/her personal information for whatsoever purpose to get further clarification and details as per the requirements.

We make it clear that any communication from our end will take place only via If you receive an email from any other email address other than, we shall not be responsible for the same. It will be highly appreciable if you inform us about any act of miscommunication or any company that alleges to be Bizdateup. Communicating through our only email id would avoid any mishap.